

The Importance of Process Design

Business process design is a skill which is rarely taught to HR professionals. This is a shame as process architecture is the fundamental building block of good organisation design. Understanding how effective processes can be created allows HR to facilitate the development of better processes with their business teams, and also enables HR to improve its own processes.

Importantly, good process design involves much more than just process mapping. Too many organisation restructures just move jobs and reporting lines around the organisation but fail to change anything fundamental about the business (a bit like moving the deckchairs on the Titanic). We therefore look at the role of process design within broader transformation, ensure design starts with good objectives, and link this to job design through the use of RACI analysis and the identification of competencies etc.

This course provides a methodology for business process design and gives participants experience in applying the methodology to their own organisations. We will also consider changes in the organisational environment, such as lean and agile, and how process design itself needs to be adapted within a digital, remote context, enabled by automation and AI, etc.

NEW study group: 17 January – 11 March 2022

The Academy's study groups are small cohorts of participants focused on a particular course. These last for about two months and are run one or more times per year for each course. Study groups provide the main basis for Q&A with Jon Ingham, and also asynchronous chat based discussion about the course, and your own opportunities around the course with other participants.

Study groups are also supported by four Zoom calls during the life of a study group. These help members of the group get to know each other, enable us to discuss more complex issues, support activities and provide a basis for reviewing the application of content to your own organisation.

The schedule for the forthcoming Process Design study group will be:
